

Subject Company: Unocal Corporation
Commission File No.: 1-8483

The following is an internal communication sent to Chevron Corporation employees by David J. O'Reilly, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Chevron Corporation, on July 13, 2005.

Message From the Chairman: Unocal Integration Update

Dear Fellow Employees,

It is my pleasure to announce the second round of employee selections as part of the proposed Chevron-Unocal merger. We continue to make significant progress in planning for the integration of the two companies, particularly in the critical area of people selections.

These next selections are similar to those made in the first round — management positions at various levels that enhance our ability to integrate Chevron and Unocal as swiftly and as effectively as possible. Although most positions are primarily in upstream organizations, there also are a few functional staff appointments as the staff groups begin their selections. Similar to the initial selections, all appointments are effective when the merger closes.

The selection process and criteria used for these selections were the same as those used for the first round. The selection teams had both Chevron and Unocal representation, including newly appointed managers.

I continue to be excited and impressed with the caliber and experience of the individuals selected and named today. They were chosen because they strive for strong business results and embody The Chevron Way values.

I also am pleased by the very high acceptance rate we have had from both Unocal and Chevron employees. This is tremendous and will help ensure a smooth transition. To view the names of this group of individuals, as well as the relevant organization charts, select the Unocal Integration Web site links at the end of this message.

We are moving quickly through the selection process in the organizations affected by the integration efforts. Keep in mind that we are not using a cascading method for selection; therefore, selections made so far do not represent every position available at management levels. We look forward to completing the selection process by the end of September and filling open positions with the valued talent and skills of both companies. You can expect to hear more about the remaining selections where appropriate from your local management as the selection process continues.

Thank you for your patience and your focus on operational excellence and achieving business results.

Dave
